BASE BALLS.

Having made arrangements with Messrs. H. Harwood & Sons and John Van Horn to furnish their brands of Base Balls in connection with those of our own manufacture, we now offer a list of twenty-two varieties. Particular attention is called to our Bounding Rock (or endless seam) ball, which was used and endorsed by all the leading clubs throughout the country the past season. Its merits are Elasticity, Endless-seam, (which will stand the severest batting without ripping,) and beauty of finish. Also, we have been appointed special agents for the sale of the celebrated John Van Horn Regulation Base Ball, which we supply to dealers and clubs at his lowest price.

The following are fac-similir of stamps on our brands of regulation Base Balls.

BASE BALL SHOE SPIKES.

No. 46 Peck & Snyder's new and improved Shoe Spike, patented May 10th, 1867.

These Spikes are so made that with a key which accompanies each set, they can be put on or taken off in three minutes. They can be fastened on any kind of a boot or shoe, and after use in the field, can be worn in the streets without injury to the spikes, shoes or feet. Fig. 1 represents the round spikes, which can be put on any ordinary boot or shoe after it is made; and with key, Fig. 2, the screws or points can be taken out or inserted at pleasure; Fig. 3, the square or oblong, can be inserted between the soles of the boots or shoes when made to order, the screws or points being inserted or removed at pleasure same as Fig. 1. Each set is put up in a neat box, and in so small a compass as to be carried in the vest pocket.

Bacon's Patent Home Gymnasium.

The apparatus is supported by two strong screw hooks in the ceiling, about eighteen inches apart, and screwed five inches into the joist. It can also be used out of doors by erecting a frame-work, such as is used for swings. The straps are of the strongest linen, handsomely colored. The rings are of the patent bent wood, about nine inches in diameter. By an ingenious device the rings and stirrups can be instantly raised or lowered to any desired height, or the stirrup straps removed, or the rings removed for the insertion of the Trapeze bar. The apparatus can be put up in any room, and removed in a moment, leaving only the two small eyes in the ceiling visible. It can be used in different rooms at pleasure, by having extra sets of hooks for the ceiling.

A space six or eight feet wide is ample for any of the exercises. Four large sheets containing over one hundred cuts of the exercises, and a pamphlet explaining how each is performed, is supplied with each apparatus.

The number and variety of exercises to which it is adapted is truly wonderful; the union of the stirrup and rings allows an extensive multiplication of the direction and manner of muscular exertion; and by it a greater number of exercises is afforded than by all other gymnastic appliances combined. The anatomist, on a careful examination of these movements will perceive that every joint and muscle of the body is exercised, under healthful conditions.

A most important feature in this system is its attractiveness, through this great variety, and the gradual increase of strength and ability to accomplish the more advanced exercises.

To clergymen, literary men, and all persons of sedentary occupations, it is particularly adapted. The exercises are especially invigorating to the digestive and respiratory organs.

To invalids and persons of delicate health it is a great boon. The feeble are constantly advised to take exercise; but the difficulty is to find an easy means of doing so. This Gymnasium supplies this desideratum. It is also of great value in creating the necessary reaction after a bath.

THE TRAPEZE.

The Trapeze does not form a part of the "Home Gymnasium," but is supplementary to it, and is intended for those who desire a greater variety of the more difficult exercises. In using the Trapeze bar the rings are removed, and the bar placed in the upper strap. A sheet of illustrations of the exercises accompany the bar, the explanations of which will be found on page 29.

THE SWING.

The child's swing consists merely of a seat, which can be easily constructed to fit into the stirrups. This we also supply when desired, neatly cushioned, and so fitted to the stirrups that it can be instantly removed when desired.

In a letter from Dio Lewis, he says:

"Mr. Bacon's Home Gymnasium is a real stroke of mechanical genius, simple, not liable to get out of repair, and in every way perfect. I congratulate the public and Mr. Bacon upon this important contribution to our means of Physical Culture. It is undoubtedly the best apparatus ever devised for home use. It is adapted to the clergyman's study, to the parlor, and, indeed, to any and all homes."
